New Features On Oman Air's Website Offer Greater Choice & Convenience

Date: 3 August 2014

Oman Air has further expanded the choice and convenience that it offers customers by enhancing the range of booking options on its newly-designed website at www.omanair.com, and by making its web check-in service even easier to use.

The national carrier of the Sultanate of Oman now offers more choice of fares for every sector on its website, and customers can also view fares for their selection of cabin class, as well as those of a higher cabin class, in a single view.

In addition, fare rules are now displayed with a simple roll-over of the customer's mouse, making the choice of fares simpler than ever, and a new feature enables customers to pre-reserve seats at the time of booking.

Oman Air's acclaimed web check-in service has also now been made more user-friendly. It offers different options through which customers can retrieve their bookings and context-sensitive messages in the event that they are unable to check-in online because of special requirements relating to their bookings.

And to ensure that Oman Air's web check-in option makes a seamless contribution to the passenger experience, the airline has opened more strategically-positioned bag-drop counters at Muscat, for those who have checked-in before arriving at the airport.

Online booking is available throughout Oman Air's network of 43 destinations across the Middle East, Europe, Asia and East Africa. Web check-in is offered in the majority of those destinations and Oman Air continues to explore opportunities to expand the service.

Oman Air's online booking system uses the latest Sabre airline reservation technology, which is accessed via www.omanair.com. Oman Air's website has undergone a recent redesign, making it faster to use, easier to navigate, and more informative. Together, the website and booking system provide an excellent introduction to Oman Air's superb hospitality, award-winning service and outstanding inflight products.
