Luxury Trip To Muscat Up For Grabs At Oman Air Media Awards

Date: 29 October 2014

Journalists and bloggers are being invited to enter examples of their work into the Oman Air Media Awards UK 2014 - and the winner will bag a luxury break for two in Oman's beautiful capital city of Muscat.

Oman Air is inviting entries for four categories of the awards, with the winner of each category going forward for consideration as the overall winner.

The categories are: Best article about the destination of Oman (print or online); Best blog article about Oman (online only); Best article about Oman Air (print or online); Best article about Oman Air's sports sponsorship (Extreme Sailing Series, Route Du Rhum, Ahmad Al Harthy, polo in Europe etc) (print or online).

Articles submitted for consideration by the judges can have been published at any time over the last five years.

The overall winner will receive a long-weekend break for two in Muscat, including Business Class return flights from London Heathrow, airport transfers and three nights' half board accommodation in one of Muscat's most luxurious hotels.

The deadline for entries was Monday 27th October and the results will be announced at a reception, to be held at Oman Air's stand at World Travel Market, from 4pm on Tuesday 4th November 2014.

Announcing the Oman Air Media Awards UK 2014, Oman Air's General Manager Marketing, Mohammed Al Shikely, said:

"Oman Air, as the Sultanate's national airline, is proud to recognise both the exceptional talent at work in the British travel media, and the awe-inspiring source of inspiration that Oman provides for journalists.

“So much has been written about Oman over the last five years and as a result, more visitors are discovering the Sultanate for themselves.

“The Oman Air Media Awards UK 2014 offer us the opportunity to thank those writers whose work has raised awareness of Oman as a destination, and of Oman Air as an outstanding international carrier. We look forward to announcing the winners at WTM in November.”
